A fantastic opportunity to learn...

WHAT PREVIOUS STUDENTS HAVE SAID

"Kathleen, I wanted to tell you that you have given me hope with my horse that I had previously lost. I felt a connection with him but with all the trouble we were having, I almost gave up on him. You allowed me to reconnect with him and feel more confident than I have ever felt in my entire life."

Kathleen has been working and riding with world-renowned horseman, Mark Rashid, for 14 years and, since 2004, has been offering classical dressage, western and jumping clinics across the USA and the United Kingdom .

At her clinics, Kathleen strives to help participants reach their individual goals with their horses by encouraging participants to keep things simple, be clear, and work with their horses rather than against them.

Each participant can obtain help with those things they feel are most important to them and their horse. Kathleen does not have a set program or curriculum that clinic participants will be expected to adhere to. Therefore, at any one clinic, participants may work on subjects as varied as softness, stopping, backing, lateral work, maintaining impulsion or gaits, speed control, collection, flying lead changes, trail skills, building confidence on the ground and/or in the saddle and jumping.

Kathleen's goal is to create a safe, supportive learning environment for all her students, horse and human alike. Non-riders are invited to be actively involved with the clinics; gaining an insight into equine and human psychology and physiology.

TWO-DAY CLINIC SPECTATORS £25 per day (£20 if booked in advance)
